The person who neglects to provide for a "Rainy Day" neglects the first duty. Every practical thinking man realizes that it is a duty he owes to himself and his family to save a portion, however small of his earnings. A saving account opened early in life and systematically kept up, will in time afford the means to grasp business opportunities. It will help to buy a home, provide in time of sickness and insure a competency and the comforts of life in old age. For Children no better or acceptable present could be made to a child than a savings account where the money is absolutely safe. ## THE FIRST TAILOR.

HE MONOPOLIZED THE SARTORIAL
TRADE OF THE WORLD.

His Methods Were Crude, and His Materials Were Rather Grotesque,
but He Turned Out Good, Honest
Work, Hand Stitched Throughout.

The first industry of the world was tailoring. The first maker of clothes and the first wearer was Adam. Of this strange character who appears on the pages of history in the dual role of the first tailor and the first customer we have but a brief biography. The meager details require sympathetic interpretation to make up a complete story. Of his father and mother no mention is made, but the record shows he was destined to be a clothier of some sort, for he was put into Eden to "dress" the garden. We do not know if he obeyed this command, as his biographers do not so state, for, it seems, instead of "dressing" the garden he "dressed" himself.

His early marriage and the trouble relating to the theft of some fruit with sundry other unpleasant details preceded his work as a tailor. He began in a humble way; just himself and one assistant. He was one of the early settlers in a newly opened country, a land of natural advantages which must soon attract other inhabitants. With a large and increasing population he foresaw that there must come a growing demand for clothing if he could introduce them and make popular his new invention. He was a pioneer. He had no competition. He controlled the tailoring trade of the world. Thus with the first industry came the first trust.

As he busily plied his needle we know not what visions of future business and wealth filled his ambitious mind. But never in his wildest dreams did he conceive that his little tailoring establishment, employing only four hands, doing only a local trade and turning out the first custom made garment, would be the beginning of a ready made clothing business that in the United States alone gives labor to hundreds of thousands of hands and covers an investment of a great many million dollars.

But of the great wealth that has come from his invention Adam, like most pioneers, made no money whatever and died leaving his family without a penny. Even his name is not associated with his wonderful discovery, but—such is the sarcasm of time—it appears only in the word Adam's apple, in memory not of his virtues, but of an escapee of his wife.

Though even Carlyle has not recognized Adam's sartorial genius, there are some capital points in the work of this first tailor.

He originated the style himself. He was not a petty trader on the reputation of others and imitating their fashions. Even in the names for the garments he was original. The first suit of clothes, in reality only a girdle or belt, he humorously termed an "apron."

It is difficult to determine the season of the year. Judging from the coolness of the suit, it might have been a summer style, but as it was just a little after the fall it was probably early in the winter.

They were hand stitched throughout. They contained no machine work or cheap labor. The workshop was in the open air, and, although tailored in the sweat of his brow, no sweatshop work was possible.

The material was not of the best, but Adam found no better at hand. Some of the modern tailors, making shoddy garments at shoddy prices, imitate Adam, who used "leavings."

As to Adam, the first customer, when he was alone in the world he never thought of dress, but when he came to the realization of himself as an individual and in relation to others he began to spruce up. Courtship led him to beautify himself, to appear well in the eyes of "the only woman he ever loved." Human nature has not changed much.

With the entry of society dress began. Perhaps this is why dress forms so prominent a feature in society today.

After eating the apple of knowledge the mind of Adam was suddenly illuminated as if by a thousand electric lights. A great thought of large, practical, worldly wisdom flashed before him. He realized that to amount to anything in the world he must make a good appearance. In this he struck a keynote of business success.

Surely he needed to keep up appearances. He reflected over his actions for the two weeks prior and then looked at his future. He had been in bad society and had been seen with a disreputable serpent, he had been led into temptation, he had broken the law, he was implicated in an apple theft as accessory after the fact, he had some of the stolen goods in his possession and he was a fugitive from justice, for he was then in "hiding." Discovery was certain. He was to be evicted from his home and in disgrace had to face the awfulness of actually earning his own living by work. Then, after a mild attack of remorse, he was equal to the situation and in a manly way accepted it, made himself a suit of clothes in which he could make a decent appearance and began life anew with the courage, hope, pride and confidence that comes from the consciousness of being well dressed.—William George Jordan in Fashioner.

SAILOR AND HORSE.

How the Retired Sea Captain Made a Purchase.

In "Horses Nine" Sewell Ford tells how a retired sea captain bought a horse. The story runs: As one who inspects an unfamiliar object Captain Bean looked dazedly at Barnacles. At the same time Barnacles inspected the captain. With head lowered to knee level, with ears cocked forward, nostrils sniffing and under lip twitching almost as if he meant to laugh, Barnacles eyed his prospective owner.

Captain Bean squirmed under the gaze of Barnacles' big, calm eye for a moment, and then shifted his position. "What in time does he want anyway, Jed?" demanded the captain.

"Wants to get acquainted, that's all, cap'n. Mighty knowin' boss, he is. Now, some hosses don't take notice of anything. They're jest naturally dumb. Then ag'in you'll find hosses that seem to know every blamed word you say. Them's the kind of hosses that's wuth havin'."

"S'pose he knows all the ropes, Jed?"
"I should say he did, cap'n. If there's anything that hoss ain't done in his day, I don't know what 'tis. Near's I can find out he's tried every kind of work, in or out of traces, that you could think of."

"Must be some old by your tell," suggested the captain, "are his timbers all sound?"

"Dunno 'bout his timbers, cap'n, but as fer wind an' limb you won't find a sounder hoss of his age in this county. Course I'm not sellin' him fer a four-year-old."

Again Captain Bean tried to look critically at the white horse, but once more he met that calm, curious gaze, and the attempt was hardly a success. However, the captain squinted solemnly over Barnacles' withers and remarked:

"Yes, he has got some good lines, as you say, though you wouldn't hardly call him clipper built. Not much sheer for'ard an' a little too much aft, eh?"

At this criticism Jed snorted mirthfully.

"Oh, I s'pose he's all right," quickly added the captain. "Fact is I ain't never paid much attention to hosses, bein' on the water so much. You're sure he'll mind his helm, Jed?"

"Oh, he'll go where you p'int him."

"Won't drag anchor, will he?"

"Stand all day if you'll let him."

"Well, Jed, I'm ready to sign articles, I guess."

ORIGIN OF OLD SAYINGS.

The Honeymoon.—For thirty days after a wedding the ancient Teutons had a custom of drinking a mead made of honey.

The Bridegroom.—In primitive times the newly wedded man had to wait upon his bride and the guests on his wedding day. He was their groom.

Sirloin of Beef.—King Charles I., being greatly pleased with a roast loin of beef set before him, declared it "good enough to be knighted." It has ever since been called Sir Loin.

A Spinster.—Women were prohibited from marrying in olden times until they had spun a full set of bed furnishings on the spinning wheel; hence, till married, they were spinsters.

Cabal.—This word was coined in Charles II.'s reign and applied to his cabinet council. It was made out of the initials of their names, which were: Clifford, Arlington, Buckingham, Ashley, Lauderdale.

Scandinavian Carving.

From earliest times carving has received great attention in Scandinavia. One sees evidence of this in many Swedish churches, both in wood and stone, dating back many centuries. In Stockholm are many to be found, now safely cared for in a well known museum. Some of these northern churches, notably those of Borgund and Hitterdal, are quite covered with such quaint ornamentation. Beyond such public expression of painstaking labor one may see in almost any comfortably furnished house wooden forks, spoons, salt boxes and platters, but still more attracting attention are huge wooden tankards, and these will often bear close study both in design and in execution.

Red Flannel Currency.

A Scotch missionary to a group of small islands in the south Pacific a great many years ago found bits of red flannel circulating as money. This currency came to them in a curious manner. The body of a shipwrecked sailor had drifted ashore, and to the untutored savages, who had never before seen clothing of any kind, his red flannel shirt was an object of wonder and admiration. By common consent they cut the garment into small pieces, which thenceforth became the currency of the island.

appoint a committee to draft resolutions of respect to the memory of McDuff Simpson, an honored member of the institute, whose death had occurred since the last meeting. The chair appointed a committee, with instructions to report at the next meeting.

Discussion of Subjects.

As a program for the morning session it was decided to call for discussions of various topics of interest.

The discussion of "Peanuts as Stock Feed" was opened by W. L. Edge, and discussed by Mr. Edge, L. D. McGee, Robert Buchanan and others. The fact was clearly brought out that by the culture of this crop an abundance of feed may be grown that will take the place of corn as feed for horses and cattle, as well as being a splendid feed for hogs. It was clearly shown by Mr. Edge that planting the shelled peanuts is a far superior method to planting in the hulls. Economy of seed, early germination and good stand are secured by this method. Some experienced growers claimed, however, that they got good results planting the whole goober, and saved lots of tedious labor shelling them. The great value of the crop was strongly emphasized.

The Cuban red potato as a feed for hogs was discussed, J. H. White and others bringing out strongly the wonderful productiveness of the crop, and the ease with which good fat hogs can be produced on the market from feeding this crop. One hundred and fifty bushels per acre was stated as an average yield. The dinner hour was announced, and everybody did justice to the ample spread, and enjoyed the free and friendly intercourse at the dinner hour.

For the afternoon session, the following hastily arranged program was taken up:

Poultry for Profit—led by Geo. W. Higgs.

Possibilities of Stock Raising on the Farm—led by Rev. J. A. Freeman.

Alfalfa—led by W. P. Connelly. Ribbon Cane—led by Mr. Holland.

Intermission for music. Some Figures—a talk by J. H. White.

Enrollment of New Members. Fixing the date and place for next meeting.

The Eagle cannot publish a full report of these discussions. It is impossible to reproduce all the good points brought out but it can be said that information, practical in its nature, was plentifully supplied, of a kind that should revolutionize our agricultural methods if the farmers all over this section would attend these meetings, take notes and profit by them. The new idea to be grasped by the farmers of this section is that not only is emancipation from cotton growing necessary, but it is also necessary to get away from the idea that corn is the only feed stuff that can be grown. There are other crops that will beat corn four to one as feed-stuff—such as alfalfa, goobers, potatoes, rape, sorghum, stock beets, turf oats, etc. etc. The tendency of the ordinary southern farmers is to be a slave, not only to cotton but to cotton and corn. While corn is an absolute necessity on the farm, still it is the most expensive feed the farmer can raise and but little suited to be made the main feed crop. For hogs and cattle, it is a good finisher, but pork raised on corn alone, as Mr. Singleton told the farmers in his lecture here, will cost about thirty-five cents a pound.

Mr. White's talk on "Figures" was an eye-opener. He read statistics that he had obtained from the railroad station agents at Bryan, showing the enormous amount of wheat and corn shipped in here. He enforced well the lesson taught by these figures. Messrs. Edge, J. W. Cloud, Webb Howell and others took part in the discussion.

Resolution of Thanks.

The following resolution, introduced by W. P. Connelly, was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, that the Brazos county Farmers Institute tender sincere thanks to the hospitable people of Kurten and surrounding country for their invitation to meet here today, and for the excellent entertainment given us; that we appreciate the same, and pray that the prosperity and happiness of the people of this community may never be less than their splendid hospitality.

Prof. S. H. Dunlap, in happy style and well-chosen words, responded for the people of Kurten to this vote of thanks.

J. H. White addressed the meeting, presenting and advocating a plan for an exhibit by Brazos county at the Farmers Congress in July. The plan included a competitive contest at the Central Texas fair in August. W. P. Connelly made a motion that a committee be appointed by the chair to whom this plan be submitted with instructions to consider it and formulate a complete working plan in all its details, to be presented to the Institute at its next meeting. Carried. The reporter did not learn the names of those appointed by President White, but the committee will be announced in the next issue of the Eagle.

Mr. Jones of Reliance addressed the chair, and stated that he wished the Institute to hold its next meeting at Reliance. He could not formally extend the invitation at the present time, but wished the opportunity to confer with other citizens of Reliance, with the view of inviting the Institute to meet with them.

On motion, Mr. Jones' proposition was accepted, and Friday, the 22d day of May, was fixed as the date for the next meeting, to be an all-day session, and to be called to order promptly at 10 o'clock in the morning. The action of the Reliance community upon the invitation will be duly announced in next week's Eagle. It is hoped that the people of Reliance will invite the Institute to meet with them.

W. P. Connelly offered the suggestion to the farmers of Kurten community that they organize a local Farmers' Institute at that place, and stated some of the advantages they might expect to reap from such action.

On motion, the Institute adjourned to meet, as above stated, one month hence.

Weak Hearts

Are due to indigestion. Ninety-nine of every one hundred people who have heart trouble can remember when it was simple indigestion. It is a scientific fact that all cases of heart disease, not organic, are not only traceable to, but are the direct result of indigestion. All food taken into the stomach which fails of perfect digestion ferments and swells the stomach, puffing it up against the heart. This interferes with the action of the heart, and in the course of time that delicate but vital organ becomes diseased.

Mr. D. Kaule, of Nevada, O., says: "I had stomach trouble and was in a bad state as I had heart trouble with it. I took Kodol Dyspepsia Cure for about four months and it cured me."
